THE HOUSEHOLD.

OLD-FASHIONED CIDER APPLE SAUCE.
—Boil a five gall brass kettle of sweet new cider to a rich syrup. Fill the kettle with peeled and cored sweet apples and cook slowly till the apple is nearly as clear and ready as jelly.

SQUARE PIE.—This recipe for a square pie will be found all right. Squash pies of various kinds. Strain them when boiled, and add 5 eggs to a quart of squash; milk, rose water, sugar, spice, etc., to the taste.

CREAM SAUCE.—This is an appetizing addition to an autumn luncheon. With one-half head of cabbage, finely shaven, should be mixed 3 tablespoonfuls of sweet cream and 3 of sugar, with pepper and salt to taste, and 1 pint of vinegar.

CREAMED POTATOES.—Take eight large potatoes, remove the eyes and all specks, and boil in salted water until done. Then place in a bowl with 1 pound of butter, salt and pepper; add a gill of cream. With an eggbeater whip to a cream. Remove to a hot dish and serve immediately.

LEGS OF MUTTON STEWED.—Make a stuffing with a little beef cut chopped, some parsley, thyme, marjoram, a little grated lemon, nutmeg, pepper, salt, and a few bread crumbs; mix all together with the yolk of an egg; put this under the skin in the thickest part of a leg of mutton under the flap; then roast it, and serve it at table with some good gravy in the dish.

A SPIDER SHORT CAKE.—Two parts rich buttermilk and one part sour cream, salted to foam, salt to taste, and flour to make a stiff batter. Roll out into thin, round cakes, the size of a fry pan, grease the top with straight lard and bake in spiders over the stove. This is good for a breakfast dish on some of these cool mornings.

QUARTER OF LAMB ROASTED.—Take fore-quarter of lamb, lard the joints of the joint with lean bacon, and sprinkle the other side thick with bread crumbs; then cover with paper to prevent the meat from being burnt, and roast it. When nearly done, take it from the fire, and cover the part that has been larded a second time with bread crumbs, seasoned with salt and parsley chopped very fine; then put the lamb before a bright fire to brown it.

HOMINY CROQUETTES.—Hominy croquettes made thus are excellent for a chilly morning breakfast: Add one cup of fine grained, cold boiled hominy one tablespoonful of melted butter, stir hard and moisten slowly with a cup of milk until of a soft, pasty consistency; add one tablespoonful of white sugar and a well-beaten egg. Roll with the hands well-floured into oval balls, dip into beaten egg, then into cracker meal, and fry in boiling hot lard.

AN EXCELLENT HASH.—Pick meat from turkey or chicken bones, shred, add dressing and what gravy may be left, with small pieces of biscuit cut fine; heat in oven over twenty minutes, when thoroughly moistened with water all will agree "that was a splendid turkey." The final picking of the bones is a dry dish, but served in this way the dryness is not there. The remnants of a fowl may also be treated as scalloped oysters—a layer of shredded or minced meat, then a layer of crumbs.

GLAZED HAM.—This is liked by nearly everyone; it should first be slowly simmered until thoroughly done. Two or three small onions and a small handful of whole spices should be thrown in with it when it is about half-done. Loosen the rind, replace, and leave in its liquor over night. In the morning remove the rind and brush the entire ham with well-beaten egg. Make a paste of a cup of powdered cracker and rich milk or cream, salt and a teaspoon of melted butter. This must be evenly and thickly spread over the ham, which is then set into the oven to brown.

PUMPKINS.—Pumpkins call up classic memories and pumpkin pies have a flavor of antiquity. The Jews cultivated pumpkins under their kings, and they were esteemed garden vegetables with the Greeks and Romans.

They were grown in the gardens of Charlemagne, and the monks of the Middle Ages were famed for their skill in cooking pumpkin pies, so says De la Croix in his ponderous volumes. The fact does not take away any of the relish that we may cherish for any of the dishes that can be prepared from the valuable cucurbita pipio.

It is now the pumpkin season and they hold possibilities beyond Jack-o'-lanterns and pies. They may be cut into small squares and baked in the oven until slightly brown, and rival sweet potatoes. Also in stewing pumpkins for to-morrow's pies, reserve about a cupful for the "body" of to-day's custard. It will be a vast improvement. We do not wish it to be sneered at. A warm one rightly made is excellent eating. This recipe will be found a good one. Take five quarts of sifted and stewed pumpkin and sweeten with molasses to taste, no rule given, as pumpkins vary so in sweetness. Add a teaspoonful each of cinnamon, allspice and nutmeg, and a pinch of salt. Fill the pan with an equal quantity of sweet milk and stir thoroughly. Bake with an under cover by a slow fire.

SHOULDER OF MUTTON STEWED WITH OYSTERS.—Let it hang for some days, then salt it well for two days, bone it, and sprinkle it with pepper and a bit of mace pounded, lay some oyster over it, roll the meat up tight and tie it. Stew it in a little water, with an onion and a few pepper corns, until it is quite tender. Have ready a little good gravy, and some oysters stewed in it; thicken it with some flour and butter, and when the taste is taken off the mutton, pour the sauce over it; be careful to keep the stewpan closely covered.

One sometimes tires of this regulation routine, and as a pleasant variation of the monotony 1 pound of cold mutton can be converted into sausage by mixing it with 3 ounces of beef suet, 1 pint of minced oysters, 1 pint of minced anchovies, and seasonings of thyme, marjoram, salt and pepper. These ingredients should be thoroughly incorporated and moistened with the separately beaten whites and yolks of two eggs, thus forming a stiff paste, which may be formed into sausage cakes and fried.

Another nice way to use remnants of mutton is to hash them. Fry a minced onion in butter until brown, stir in a tablespoonful of flour, add a broiler to make the sauce, a dash of vinegar, salt, pepper and spices to taste. Bring this to a boil and strain, and when cold add the slices of meat and a goodly allowance of sliced pickle. Warm the whole by gently simmering and serve with sippets—slices of bread, three-eighths of an inch thick, shaped into arrowheads, or triangles and fried golden brown in butter.

In most well managed households it is a matter almost of necessity to keep cold meat—roasted or boiled—always on hand. In the event of an unexpected influx of company after the customary day's supplies have been gathered in, it will "piece out" very nicely and vary the rations.

Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, in a long letter to the London Chronicle, says he is delighted with the cordiality and heartiness of the reception accorded British delegates to the Ecumenical Conference at Washington. He says: "The peculiarly intense brotherliness existing among the American Methodists is a quality charming and blessed beyond all praise."

NOVEL USES OF ARC LIGHTS.

Are lights have served many uses outside of conventional methods of illumination, not merely in connection with the good work of attracting and then singeing quarts of small bugs with big names, but their actual application has been at times quite out of the usual course of events.

An arc light is not usually regarded as equivalent for a rifle, although one recently served such a purpose without causing any injury to life. Two steamers were racing on Long Island Sound, and when in a somewhat difficult channel the captain of the slower steamer bethought himself of the search-light, which was trained on the pilot house of the rival, causing the captain of the faster steamer to change his course. The electric light doubtless saved life, (and also the race); because, following the custom of the good old times under such circumstances, the captain would probably have adopted the Western river custom of taking a rifle, going well forward among the freight and picking off the pilot before submitting to defeat, or, if unduly merciful, he might have contented himself with merely passing the bullets into the pilot-house in such a way as to chip off the woodwork around the pilot by way of vigorous hint.

Electric lighting has been applied to races equally to the interests of all parties in horse trots at night, where the races were all right, but the people did not conform to the unusual change in hours. The actinic rays in arc lights render them very useful in methods of photography other than those of portraiture. In the numerous applications of photography, in copying and engraving, uniform effects can always be obtained and the work consistently carried on at will independent of the sun—comfortably taking the weather as it comes, whether one has a Farmer's Almanac or not.

It has not generally been considered that light is necessary to find a fire, but an arc light is to be credited with such work in revealing a fire in the upper part of the public building in Philadelphia, in the summer of 1883, when an arc light hanging over the courtyard illuminated the smoke curling from the fire before any flames were visible to those on the ground.

In the same city arc lights served a very useful purpose in guiding the fireman around the lower part of a building which was burning above. The globes were of the cup shape, and readily catching the water from the streams leaking through the building, present the strange aspect of light burning under water.

I do not recall any instance of the use of arc lights in surgery, although an attempt was faithfully made in the direction at the time of the assassination of President Garfield. The circumstances related by one of those engaged in the preliminary (and final) experiments were as follows:

The surgeons were very much embarrassed by their failure to determine the position of the bullet in the body of the President, and some one considered that if a powerful beam of light could be concentrated upon his person it would render the bullet visible. Several naval officers at the Washington Navy Yard gave the resources of the yard, and in a short time a 10-light arc lighting dynamo had been installed with only one light in circuit, and which was regulated by hand. This light was in the focus of a mirror which would concentrate the rays at a point about 10 feet distant.

The illumination upon an iron plate held at this point was very brilliant, but in order that the experiment could be submitted in all its fullness to the surgeons in attendance upon the disheveled patient, it was determined to make a preliminary trial upon an army veteran who carried a bullet in the lower part of his back near to the suspected location of the bullet in the body of the President. The man disrobed to the practical extent necessary for making the trial, and, standing upon the spot marked for the focus, the large arc light was lighted and the mirror swung into position. At this point the subject gave a leap further into space than any wayer could have tempted him, and drew into incoherence endeavoring to express his surprise at the abuse to which he had been subjected by searing his back without notice. In fact, nothing but hobbled feet from neglected clothing prevented him from endeavoring to make summary reprisals upon the experimenters, who in turn were equally surprised, as their work had been based upon the assumption that there was no heat in the illumination radiating from arc lights. Suffice it say that the proposed method of treatment never brought to the attention of the surgeons, as at first contemplated.

Numerous experiments have been tried with a fair degree of success in hastening the growth of fruits by the use of electric lights; but transportation from further South is a very good means of obtaining early fruit. In certain agricultural districts given to the cultivation of small fruits, the arc lights in villages and towns are used without globes in order to encourage the growth of insects, pests.—(C. J. H. Woodbury in Electrical Review.

W. S. RICHARD.

Tennessee mining troubles at Briceville and Coal Creek resulted Friday night in the burning of the stockades at those points and the release of the convicts by free miners. Three thousand men surrounded the stockades and liberated 329 prisoners. The convicts were given citizens clothes and most of them started for the Kentucky line. The wires were cut by the miners and the details of the delivery are meager.

The Kentucky Training School has received its quota of guns from the State, and we may now expect the boys to put up a "sure enough" drill. Major Fowler assures us that no cadet will be allowed to bring a cartridge on the place nor take a gun from the grounds. This step he considers necessary on the grounds of safety and is right. He issues a standing invitation to all people interested in education to visit the school and see the work done, including the daily drill, which takes place at 10 a. m.

SETTLES BROS.

The celebrated Kentucky Break Cart, the best made, is manufactured by Settles Bros., Mt. Sterling, Ky.

We regret to note the fact that Mr. C. W. Carpenter, the well-known dry goods man at Masonic Temple, has decided to leave Mt. Sterling, and will go just as soon as he can sell out or reduce his stock sufficiently. He will have no auction, but will sell, as will be seen in his advertisement, at auction prices in all departments of his immense establishment. He is a good business man, a clever gentleman and Mr. Sterling can ill afford to lose him.

Miss Mary Patterson, aged 23, died at the home of Mr. Peter Kelly, near this city, on Friday night, Oct. 30th. She had for some time been a sufferer from that dread scourge, consumption, and patiently bore all the pain and suffering that came out to her. For the past seven years she had made her home with Mr. Peter Kelly, and was a true and good woman. The funeral service was held in the Catholic church on Sunday afternoon; burial in the Catholic cemetery.

Dr. L. C. Jeffries and wife are now pleasantly located at Mr. S. W. Gaitskill's, on Howard Avenue, where they will be glad to see any of their many friends. The doctor and his wife will hereafter make their home with their daughter, Mrs. Gaitskill. A well-kept life entitles this grand old couple to a season of peaceful quiet before they go to their final reward. If success in life is to be measured by the good deeds we have done, then truly they have not lived in vain, for the neighbors and friends among whom they have spent a long life of usefulness, say their good deeds are without number.

J. Talbott Jackson, a student of Central University, Richmond, Ky., has won the Interstate oratorical medal in a contest at Charleston, S. C. The contending representatives were from North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia and Tennessee. J. Talbott Jackson, the winner of the medal, is the son of Mrs. Lizzie Jackson, nephew of the late Dr. John D. Jackson, of Danville, and a grandson of the Hon. Albert G. Talbott. He is a student of Central University, and an orator of no small note, having won the Chancellor's best speaker's medal at Central University at the June commencement, the Chautauqua medal at Lexington in August, and this last honor stamps him the foremost speaker of the South. Mr. Jackson on his return was met at the depot by a committee of his fellow-students in a carriage, and at night a banquet was tendered him.

DUN'S REPORT.

The improvement in business still continues.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—[R. G. Dun & Co.'s Review of Trade says: The improvement in business still continues. It is greater than before at the West, considerable at the South, and is clearly perceived at the East. Yet discouragement in some branches of industry is not less, but more apparent than before, entirely because calculations have been made upon a more rapid and greater increase in business than have been realized. Premature expansion in some forms of production and of trade has involved the usual corrective, and the disposition exists so general that it might easily be misinterpreted.

No fears are entertained of monetary pressure throughout the East and West, and at most of the Southern points.

The money markets are well supplied for legitimate business and rates tend lower, while collections improve to some extent almost everywhere, but especially at the principal Western points. The failures this week 255, last week 249, last year 218.

Autobiography of "Bill Nye."

Edgar Wilson Nye was born in Maine in 1850, August 25, but at two years of age he took his parents by the hand telling them that Pleasantville County was no place for them; he boldly struck out for St. Croix County, Wisconsin, where the young man soon made a home for his parents. The first year he drove the Indians out of the St. Croix valley, and engaged to the Northwestern Railroad that it would be a good idea to build to St. Paul as soon as the company could get a grant which would pay them two or three times the cost of construction. The following year he adopted trousers and made $175 from the sale of wolf scalps. He also cleared 27 acres of land, and raised some watermelons. In 1854 he established an unincorporated district in Pleasant Valley. It was at this time that he began to turn his attention to the abolition of slavery in the South, and to write articles for the press signed "Veritas," in which he advocated the war of 1860, or as soon as the government could get around to it.

In 1864 he graduated from the farm and began the study of law. He did not advance very rapidly in this profession, failing several times in his examination and giving bonds for his appearance at the next term of court. He was, however, a close student of political economy, and studied personal economy at the same time. He found that he could easily live on ten cents a day and his relatives.

Mr. Nye now began to look about him for a new country to build up and foster, and as Wisconsin had grown to be so thickly settled in the northwest, part of the State that neighbors were frequently found as near as five miles apart, he broke loose from all restraint and took emigrant rates for Cheyenne, Wyoming. Here he engaged board at the Inter-Ocean Hotel and began to look about him for a position in a bank. Not succeeding in this, he tried the law and journalism. He did not succeed in getting a job for some time, but finally hired as associate editor and janitor of the Laramie Sentinel. The salary was small, but his attitude great, and he was permitted to write anything "he pleased." By and by he had won even a peach by his gentle, patient poverty, and, as a result, his editorial was a success. With a hectic imagination, and an order on a restaurant, which appeared in the paper, he scarcely cared through the liveliest day whether school kept or not.

Thus he rose to Justice of the Peace and finally to an income which is reported very large to everybody but the Assessors.

He is the father of several beautiful children by his first wife, who is still living. She is a Chicago girl, and loves her husband far more than she deserves. He is a pleasant to the outside world, but a perfect brute in his home. He is very learned that in order to win the love of his wife he should be erratic and kick the stove over on the children when he came home. He therefore asserts himself in this way, and the family love and respect him, being awed by his greatness and gentle barbarism.

He eats plain food with both hands, conversing all the time pleasantly with anyone who may be visiting at the house. If his children misbehave, he kicks them beneath the table till they howl with pain, as he chats on with the guests with a bright and ever-flowing stream of bon mots which please and delight those who visit him to that degree that they almost forget that they have had hardly anything to eat.

In conclusion, Mr. Nye is in every respect a lovely char acter. He feared that injustice might be done him, however, in this biographical sketch, so he has written it himself.

RELIGIOUS.

The meeting at the Methodist church, in charge of Mr. H. C. Settles, of Louisville, is still in progress. On Wednesday Mr. Settles was called home to officiate at a wedding, and at night Rev. J. H. Williams filled his pulpit. On Thursday evening the several pastors of the churches in the city took charge of the services, and Revs. Bomar, Nave, Clark, spoke on crying evils that hurt the peace and good order of our community. Dr. Settles returned before the services of the evening were over, and has been preaching to a constantly growing audience. There has thus been 6 additional, but the interest is daily increasing.

PERSONAL.

Col. G. P. Taylor, of the Winchester S. S. is in the city Sunday.

C. S. Radliff and wife, of Sharpsburg, were visiting in the city the past week.

Col. Jesse B. Lovely, the well-known grocery drummer, was in the city, Saturday.

Miss Bee Powell, of Lexington, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Joe B. Smith, of this county.

Chas. Ross and wife, of Fleming county, are visiting relatives in the city and county.

Miss Mattie Crockett, of this city, is the guest of Miss Lulu Bassett, in Mt. Sterling.—Lex. Press.

Dr. R. H. Ilher returned yesterday from Louisville, where he had been to fill Dr. R. H. Ilher's pulpit.

W. H. Brown, representing Trimble Bros., of Mt. Sterling, was here Thursday.—[Jackson Hustler.]

Mr. Wm. Quisenberry, of Salt Lick, spent several days in the city with his family the latter part of the week.

Wm. Bridgeford, Rankin Whitsett, James T. Highland and S. P. Hunt attended the tobacco sales in Louisville the past week.

Sam Greenwald and wife are home from Eldorado Springs. We understand Mrs. Greenwald's health is not greatly improved.

Sheriff B. M. Carr, of Morgan county, on his way to Frankfort to settle with the Auditor, stopped here Friday.

Col. J. T. Hazell spent the past week at his old home, in West Liberty, last week attending to legal business.

Lexington's primary on Saturday, to select Democratic nominees for the city offices passed off quietly. Davidson received the nomination for Mayor by a handsome majority. Grover Cleveland and Ben Harrison are the names of two twin steers owned by a Mr. Walker, of Jasper county. Mo. Ben weighs 4,000 and Grover tips the beam at 4,040 pounds. Mr. Walker thinks they are the largest pair of cattle in the world, and proposes to exhibit them at the World's Fair, '93.

BEAN BROS.

Mr. W. R. Nummely, who has been very ill for some two weeks past, is now much improved. Whilst still very ill, he is in a fair way to recover.

The many friends of Mrs. H. H. Rings will be glad to know she is rapidly recovering from the very severe illness from which she has been confined to her bed for a couple of weeks.

It is Dr. J. A. Taulbee, of Hazel Green, who has moved to Clay City, and not Dr. J. Breck. Taulbee, of Mt. Sterling. Dr. J. B. Taulbee says that he is permanently located, and likes Mt. Sterling and her people too well to leave them.

Doc. Parson's saw-mill, on Donaldson, caught fire on Saturday night. The mill was a portable one, and some neighbors succeeded by great exertion in saving a large part of the machinery, but about 10,000 feet of sawed lumber was lost.

Mrs. Sallie Bibb, wife of James Bibb, died at her home on Donaldson, in this county, on Friday, Oct. 30th, aged about 72 years. For some time she had been in ill health, and her death was not unlooked for. A constant member of the church, and a woman full of good works, she will be greatly missed by those who knew and loved her.

On Friday night Mr. J. W. Royster, near Lexington, used some fire in his hen house. He picked up his gun and went toward the barn, when three men came out. Calling to them he was answered by several pistol shots. He replied to this with a load of buckshot, when one man fell dead, and the others fled. The dead man, a negro, had six chickens he had just killed from the roost.

Central Music Hall seldom holds a larger crowd than the one that gathered there last night to hear the famous humorist, Mr. Nye was never drooler. He began the fun with his blind pig story, and read the story of the impossible boy, and for an encore he told how he made his first $5. Mr. Nye again read an original poem, "Regarding Autumn Leaves." He added several stanzas for an encore, and then caught the crowd with a new two to the effect that New York was now so deep under the autumn leaves that the World's Fair Committee would never be able to locate it.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat, April 24, 1891.

Watson Lodge I. O. O. F. is a charitable institution that has done a vast deal of good during its long career of usefulness in our midst. In all this time it has never asked aid of the people. The loss of the building and the expense consequent upon rebuilding, has made such heavy drafts upon their treasury that they are just now a little cramped for money to re-furnish their lodge-room. The people of the Rebecca Degree Lodge propose to aid them by giving an oyster supper on Thursday night. Now our people can help an institution that has spent many thousands of dollars in caring for the sick, burying the dead, providing for the widows and educating the orphans in our community. Spend a half-dollar with these noble women on Thursday night.

Louisville Tobacco Marke, Furnished by Glover & Durrill—Louisville Tobacco Warehouse.

Sales on our market for the week just closed amount to 2,531 hhds., with receipts for the same period of 562 hhds; sales on our market since Jan'y 1st, amount to 138,248 hhds. Sales of the crop of 1890 on our market to this date 96,001 hhds.

The offerings of the week have embraced a good hoghead of burley tobacco the growth of this year, but in quality it failed to come up to the high standard attributed to the crop and the prices realized for the few hogheads of tobacco which have been offered, ranged from $4 to $18 per 100 pounds. The market for old burley during the week has maintained a firm position but we are not able to fairly represent our market for old burley tobacco.

Trash (dark) or damaged tobacco $2 to $3.
Colony trash not colony, $3 to $4.
Colony lugs, $4 to $10.
Common leaf, $5 to $7.
Medium to good leaf, . . . $7 to $12.
Good leaf, $12 to $22.
Select waxy tobacco, . . . $22 to $33.

Sharpsburg Items.

After an absence from your columns of nearly four weeks, caused by sickness, we again take up our pen to resume our duties as correspondent. We now hope to send in the news regularly.

Mrs. Wm. Duckworth, of Thompson, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. William Baker.

Tom Allen, of Montana, arrived here last Wednesday. He will probably be with us for several months.

Miss Sallie Higgins, of Carlisle, who has been visiting Miss Pearl Kinser, has returned home, taking with her Miss Kinser, who is now her guest at Carlisle.

Mr. William Spaulding, Jr., has returned from Illinois, where he has been for the past three weeks on business.

Miss Nancy Kinser is visiting Miss Mattie Emmons, at Reynoldsville.

J. M. Brown's brick-kiln will soon be ready to be burnt. Mr. Brown will build a large brick business house on the lot he purchased from Mrs. Henry.

In the place of the brick residence which was destroyed by fire, Mrs. W. Wood is having erected a large frame residence which will soon be ready for occupancy. The post-office is also being rebuilt, and will likely be ready for use sometime the present week.

Mrs. Sallie Henry has bought a lot at Flat Rock, and is having built thereon a convenient dwelling-house.

Quite a number of our citizens attended the sale of W. N. Smoot's, deceased, personal property, last Saturday.

Water for stock, and in fact for almost any purpose, is becoming very scarce in this neighborhood. Several copious and long-continued rains would bring joy to the hearts of "wet" farmers.

Mr. Walter Sharpe has returned from an extended visit to friends in Missouri.

J. T. Jones and J. Clyde Nelson will sell their farm at public auction to the highest bidder, on the afternoon of November 14.

I will stand my fine bull Hamilton Trimmings at my place on the Fox pike, at $2.50 cents to insure a calf.

GRAND OPERA-HOUSE.

BILL NYE RETURNS FROM EUROPE.

The Famous Entertainers Delight a Large Audience at the Armory.

A very large audience assembled at the Armory last night to hear Bill Nye, the eminent humorist, and his vaudeville act. The famous monologue entertainer. The people expected much and were not disappointed. In fact all were delighted, and at the close of the performance retracted here to hear the great attraction. Mr. Nye kept the audience in an uproar of laughter and was recalled on his every appearance. Burbank did some very exceptionally fine work, both humorous and serious, and completely captivated his hearers. He was repeatedly recalled. On the whole it was one of the most satisfactory entertainments ever given in Carlisle, and will long be remembered with pleasure by those who were so fortunate as to be in attendance upon it. The special train from the east brought in a very large crowd, and there were many persons from other neighboring towns who came in on the regular trains, making in all something like 250 to 300 people from outside the city who were attracted here to hear the great attraction. All went away delighted and feeling fully repaid for the time and money spent in the journey.—[Detroit, (O.) Journal, and 4th, 1891.]

THE ADVOCATE.

ON AN OLD WOMAN SINGING.

Sweet are the songs that I have heard
From green hedges and the building bird,
From children laughing over with tune
White sheep still held in half in swoon
And early bees humming everywhere
Their drowsy buzz along the air;
From hunters and the hunting horn
Before the day star woke the morn;
From brooms in anemalous dusk,
Where, richer than a puff of smoke,
The blossom breath they drifted through Fall out of branches dripping dew.
And sweet the strains that come to me
When in great memories I see
All that full throated quiring thrush
On streaming on the wings of song
Her who afar in upper air
Sounded the wild Valkyrie's cry,
With golden clasp of shield and spear,
Shouting for only gods to hear;
And her who on the trumpet blew
The "Angels Ever Bright and Fair,"
Her voice, her presence, where she stood,
Already part of angelhood.

Just never have I heard in song
Sweetness and sorrow mingling
Their being as hushed music rings
Along vibrating wire strings—
When, with all her eighty years,
With all her fees hunched in tears,
A little woman, with a look
Like some flower faded in a book,
Liked a child and piping tune,
And like the quivering note, her moan,
Forgetful that another heard,
And sang till all her soul was stirred.
And listening, oh, what joy and grief
Trembled there like a trembling leaf
The strain where first she thrilled the bars
Beneath the priesthood of the stars;
The murmur of soft lullaby
Above dear, unconscious eyes,
The hymn where once her pure soul trod
The legends above the hills of God;
All on the quivering note awoke,
And in a silent passion broke,
And made that tender tone and word
The sweetest song I ever heard.
—Harriet Prescott Spofford in Harper's Bazar.

Begin Studying on the Farm.

Dr. C. C. Abbott, the well known archaeologist, began the study in which he made his reputation when he was a farmer near Trenton. His farm occupied a knoll overlooking the wide lowlands along the Delaware, where the Delaware Indians and their predecessors were undoubtedly reared in large numbers.
From the river banks and from the plowed fields he gathered some 30,000 relics in clay, bone and stone, the product of the aborigines who once lived, fished, hunted and manufactured their implements and utensils there.

The larger part of his collections are in the Peabody museum, at Cambridge.
His exhibits there number 27,000 pieces.
Dr. Abbott has been appointed curator of the American Museum of Anthropology connected with the University of Pennsylvania, and is now devoting his energy to this new museum, which already contains about 25,000 specimens.

Calculating Machines.

"Come and let the machine tell you age," said one young girl to another as they waited for a train at the station.
"So you believe that, do you?" was the response. "I think you wouldn't if you took a second thought. You see there are springs and things to press, and you get certain results. It is a sort of calculating machine, and in reality you tell your own age. If you want any other date you can get it quite as easily by starting from any given day. If you are interested in reckoning uncles, aunts and good aunts, don't be deterred by the belief that such a bit of mechanism has resolving or other faculties and could tell you anything you didn't know yourself." —New York Ledger.

An Incident of Death.

A St. Anthony street motor car sauntering into the house the other morning, where her youthful son was enjoying himself in his own way
"Johnnie," she called, "are you smoking a cigarette?"
"No," he answered from behind the curtains, as he threw something out of the window.
"Yes, you are, too. I smell it."
"No," I ain't," he answered. "It was only a cigar stump I found in the gutter."
"Oh," she said, apparently much relieved, "I beg your pardon, but don't you ever let me catch you smoking a cigarette. Do you hear me?"
"Yes," and Johnnie went out and restored the stump to its previous position. —Detroit Free Press.

Electric Registering Tills.
Some time ago an electric till was brought out in England which materially decreased the possibility of tampering, and at the same time afforded an excellent check on the day's receipts.
The inventor has made several improvements on the original device, which will now register accurately every cent received, from a cent to a twenty dollar piece. By a simple arrangement the till can be placed in any part of the store, and as an indicator it is said to work perfectly. —New York Telegram.

Pain That Woe Would Bear.
There are maladies which were not known fifty years ago. There were maladies which have gone out of record. But a unaided of all ages is one known to convalesce only. The patient has pain in his back, in his legs, in his pocketsbook filled with pain-killers. He suffers the tortures of a Sisyphus deprived of Portia of a pound of gold. —New York Times.

The old house of John Howard Payne is still in a good state of preservation.
It is a lovely dwelling with quantities of roof to it, covered with new shingles.
There is a garden attached, in which hollyhocks grow, and there is a picture-ous old well near by.

The Garden in November.

Something should be done in the garden this month or as early next month as it can be got at. The upper agus stalks should be cut and taken off the bed. The old wood should be cut out of the currents, blackberries and raspberries, and they should all be liberally manured. It is also a good time to get cuttings from the best kinds to heel in this winter and set out next spring. Even if there are already enough it may pay to make new plantations and root out some of the older ones when these come to bearing. The rhubarb also wants manuring this fall, and where it has grown so thick as to make big small stalks, split the crown of the old root, and take a part of it away to start new beds. This is a profitable crop, especially in a spring when there have not been many apples carried through the winter. The strawberries need to have the weeds and superfluous plants taken out in preparation for the mulching which will need to be done later. The material for mulching should be gathered together and made ready against the time of need. —American Cultivator.

Queen Mary's Lapdog.

Mary Queen of Scots had a favorite lapdog, which is said to have been present at the execution of her poor mistress in Fotheringhay castle. After the royal lady had been beheaded the faithful creature refused to leave her dead body and had to be carried out of the hall by force. At that period lapdogs were the pets of men as well as of women. Dr.
Boley, a relation of the unhappy Queen Anne Boleyn, owned one "which," as he is written, "he doted on." Anne once asked him to grant her one wish and instead he should have whatever he might desire. Knowing his affection for the dog, she begged it of him and of course the doctor had nothing to do but to give it to her. "And now, madam," he said,
"you promised to grant my request."
"I will," quoth the queen. "Then, I pray you, give me my dog again." —Exchange.

You will observe that bragging is something very nearly universal. Those who do not brag are despised as being life-deceiving creatures. Both habits are unquestionably nonsensical. You are not the greatest genius under the moon; and if you were it would not be worth your while to brag about it.
We forget our biggest men out of hand. If you will go through the schools today you will not find one boy or girl out of ten that can tell you who Napoleon was, or when he lived, and not so many who know anything about Daniel Webster. But just think what an immense amount of conceit there is and has been in human folk! What a condition of bragging! What swelling and strutting! Oh, we fools! —St.
Louis Globe-Democrat.

Mrs. Gaswell—just makes me mad.
Here I go out shopping in my $5.00 worth dress, and just loaded with diamonds, yet she thinks I'm poor.
Mr. Gaswell—They do.
Mrs. Gaswell—Yes, they do. I went to Antiques, Design & Co.'s grand store today to get some furniture for the new house, and at first they didn't show me anything but a lot of old second-hand stuff that looked as if it had come over in the ark. —New York World.

A Business Man's Advice to His Old Friends.

(Somerville, Tenn., Reporter and Falcon.)

EDITORS REPORTER AND FALCON: Will you have patience with an old citizen, and allow him through your paper to say a few words to his old Democratic friends, and especially those of the Alliance. There is probably not an Alliance man in Fayette county who does not read the Reporter and Falcon, and I want to speak a few words of truth and sober earnestness to them.

I was for 25 years an active business man in Somerville, and have a deep interest in all that conduces to the growth and prosperity of the county. No sober, earnest, thinking man can hesitate for a moment to admit, to himself at least, that life and hope of the South rests with the Democratic party and the enforcement of the doctrines of genuine Democracy. The rule of Democracy is the fair and equitable rule of the white man, and means peace, prosperity and perpetuity to the country. There are no truer, more reliable or earnest Democrats to be found in the United States than those of Fayette county—men who have lived and fought for the tenets of Democracy, men who have given of their time, their money and their blood, to sustain and enforce the grand and saving principles that underlie true Democracy. You have fought and striven against fearful odds for 25 years, fought a noble fight, kept the faith without wavering, and now when permanent victory is within your grasp it cannot be that you will allow yourselves to be led astray by specious theories and false doctrines and follow new and self-constituted leaders whose Democracy is measured by their own selfish interests and is only as broad as their pockets are deep. Surely you are not willing to throw away and make useless all you have striven for for so many long and dreary years, full of discouragement and defeat, borne with the patience and bravery of true, earnest and patriotic men, allow all the fruit of these years of labor to be lost when within your grasp, by divisions and contentions introduced and promoted by men who are Democrats for revenue only, men who are guided and directed by the leaders of your direct foes. If you are real, genuine, heart-and-soul Democrats, you are so because you have faith and trust in the Democratic party as an organization. If you are such, why isn't the Democratic party good enough for you? What do you want with any other political organization? Cannot you be content to believe and follow the old leaders with whom you have labored so long and so well, and the party with which you have for so many years been identified? You have grievances, troubles, sore and hard to be borne, injustices without redress, but cannot you right these within the limits and by the aid of your own party? Can you do better with new leaders, men who have never before sympathized with you? I believe most fully and honestly in the Alliance and the necessity for its existence, as there is no class of men who more need organization and can do better work with it than the farmers, but are curb-stone farmers and new leaders safer and better to be trusted than the old leaders? It is a good time to "swap horses" when the current is bearing you away, the waves are swelling and tossing all around you?

I have passed the best years of my life with you, and in the ranks of the Democratic party there may be, and is, need of reform—quick, sharp, earnest reform—but cannot this be better done on the old lines and with the old friends to help? Is it good, safe policy to go to other folks and other organizations to find your leaders and teachers? If you break up the Democratic party in the South and introduce negro rule and negro equality, have you bettered yourself? Can the leadership of the negro, the carpet-bagger and the pension-drawer be better for the farmer of the South than that of the old friends, even with their many faults? A man's own family and kindreds may have many false ideas, bad practices and erroneous views, but can he do better by giving himself into the charge and keeping of his deadliest enemies, list through their promises and specious though their schemes may be?

If you have been disposed to hearken to the blandishments of these third-party leaders, listen to what one of them said recently in a speech not intended for your hearing or reading: a speech of Senator Peffer, a child and product of the Alliance in the North, who says: "If the Alliance should fall in everything else it proposes but should succeed in breaking up the solid South by absorbing a majority of the Democratic votes of that section, it will deserve the lasting gratitude of the whole nation. It will have accomplished what the managers of the Republican party have spent years of time and several million dollars in vain to do, and by so doing demonstrate its greater potency as a political diplomat."

Will you think of these things? You all know me, know that I have nothing to make in this contest; I am no politician and no candidate for office. I am merely a plain business man, who loves the people with whom I have spent the best years of my life and desire only what is for their good.

It is often better to endure the ill we have than to accept those whereof we know not; it is better to endeavor to reform evils by using the means which we have at hand and those we know and can use than to go further and fare worse by falling into the hands of strangers and sojourners. If the Republican leaders have chestnuts that they wish pulled out of the fire by means of the third party fingers, let them have them for themselves and by themselves and burn their own fingers, not yours. Do not be persuaded to give up all you have so long contended for, and, uniting with negroes, carpetbaggers and new lights, allow harm and ruin to come to all that is near and dear to us.

The Democratic party has saved the country in times that are past and will do it again if the farmers and workmen will but trust and control it, instead of letting it fall into the hands of its enemies and the enemies of the South.

Yours as a Democrat,
FRANK TRIMBLE.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Senator Voorhees is ill at his residence in Washington City.

The United States steel cruiser "Detroit" was launched from the ways at Baltimore Wednesday.

Bushnell & Bushnell, real-estate dealers of St. Paul, Minn., have failed for more than half a million dollars.

Diphtheria is prevalent to an alarming extent in Franklin, Ind., and the city schools have been closed on account of the dread disease.

The steamer Oliver Berne burned at Milliken's Bend, about twenty miles above Vicksburg, on Thursday morning. Many lives are reported lost.

Col. Andrew J. Casey has sold the Russellville Herald to his partner, Judge Coke, and has bought an interest in the Owensboro Daily Enquirer.

Twenty houses in the business portion of Franklin, Tenn., were burned Thursday. The loss is $30,000. Fire did $30,000 damage to property at Kenton, O., also.

Owing to the great increase of leprosy in Bokhara, the hot-hole of the plague in Asia, the Emir has decided to segregate all lepers and to establish a hospital for their treatment by specialists.

John Dillon was assaulted in the streets of Cork on Wednesday, presumably by Fenellians. He was stoned by his assailants, and one of them struck him on the leg, inflicting severe injuries.

Chief Justice Fuller, of the United States Supreme Court, who has been detained at Chicago on account of illness in his family, returned to Washington Wednesday, and resumed his official duties.

An elevator at Peoria, Ill., owned by Kingman, Warren & Co., was burned Friday morning, together with 100,000 bushels of grain. The loss will reach $90,000.

The H. C. Cotter Lumber Company with $300,000 liabilities and $100,000 nominal assets, and the Louisville State & Lumber Company with $50,000 liabilities and $75,000 nominal assets, assigned at Louisville, Friday.

Newman, Georgia, is terribly wrought by reason of the repetition of incendiary fires. Within the 24 hours from Tuesday night to Wednesday night, there occurred three destructive fires, evidently of incendiary origin. The combined loss will reach $200,000. A militia company is on guard to protect the property of the citizens.

Ex-Congressman La Follett and United States Senator Sawyer are mixed up in a scandal at Milwaukee. La Follett charges that Sawyer offered him money to use his influence on Judge Siebecker in the suits against State Treasurer Harshaw. Siebecker is La Follett's brother-in-law, and he has refused to try the case in consequence of La Follett's charges. Senator Sawyer denies the charges, and says he only offered La Follett a fee as a lawyer.

Forest fires are doing great damage in Indiana, Arkansas and Texas. In Indiana the flames are still spreading and several farm houses, a saw mill and a quantity of lumber is reported as burned, and railroads are threatened. In Forest county, Ark., and Newton county, Tex., danger is apprehended of much damage because of drought that is existing there.

Louisville suffered a $100,000 fire on Monday evening—Kaufmann, Straus & Co., J. V. Escott, Co., the Polytechnic Society, and the estates of N. Bloom and E. Baumberger. The fire was started by the explosion of a boiler in the building occupied by the Louisville Electric Light Company. W. R. Adams, fireman of the Electric Light Company, died from injuries received in the explosion.

LAND, STOCK AND CROP.

Thomas Hiale desires to rent his farm. See notice in another column. Corn is selling at $2.25 per bu. in the field in the Judy neighborhood.

Charlie Donohoe sold to Redmond 11 fat cattle at 5 cents and 6 "stags" at 4 cents, for November delivery.

Mr. John A. Thompson sold Redmond 50 fat cattle for November delivery at $4.85 per hundred.

Mr. John A. Thompson bought six head of feeders of Andy McDure, average 1,200 pounds, at $3.75 per hundred.

At the combination of Ferguson & Frazier, of Cynthiana, last week sixty head of horses brought $11,945, an average of $196 per head.

Clifton Prewitt bought of George Prewitt 40 head of two-year-old cattle, for feeders, average 1,125 pounds, at 24 cents per pound.

George C. Case sold his crop of tobacco in Louisville the past week from $3.50 to $16.50 per hundred; average $9.40 per hundred.

Dr. C. W. Mathers sold 40 head of New York cattle—about the best bunch that ever left the county, to Layton & Moore, for 44 cents.—[Carle Mercury.]

Mason & Cluke shipped a car load of fat hogs to Cincinnati the past week, bought at $3.50. They also shipped on Saturday to the same place a car load of cattle that cost them 2 cents.

The want of rain is becoming a matter of serious moment with the farmers of this and adjoining counties. There are no life and aunts about it, a serious loss is now staring the farmer in the face. The wheat that has sprouted will die from the want of moisture; it can't live.—[Henderson Gleason.]

The plan of keeping the cattle on the streets on court days is working splendidly. About 1,500 head of cattle were sold at the pens yesterday, and one of the largest dealers, who opposed the change at first, is now heartily in favor of it.—It is better for both buyer and seller, as all dealers will acknowledge when they become accustomed to the new order of things.—[Winchester Sun.]

The Montana Live Stock Journal says: "Evidence multiply to cause the belief that there is an actual shortage in the supply of beef cattle in the United States, as a whole, compared with a few years ago. This shortage is not confined to the northern range country, where we know the holdings are one-third less than they were in 1883, but in every grain-raising State west of the Alleghany mountains the decline in beef values has caused a curtailment in cattle production on the farms. More than a dozen States will be active buyers of feeding steers after the first of October, in the event of the crop maturing as it now promises to do."

The Danville Advocate reports the sale of the estate of T. M. Lillard, dec'd., on Wednesday, as follows: Farm of 430 acres, as follows, sold to P. G. Robinson, for Mrs. Lillard's sons, $65.01 per acre. Ten shares of Boyle Bank stock were purchased by A. E. & R. D. Logan at $195.55 per share. 18 plain 2-year old cattle brought $2.25 per cwt; 2 sows and 15 pigs $12.25; 31 shoats $2.51 per cwt; 2 fat hogs $3.55; corn in heap, about 250 bbls. $1.96 per bu; fodder 20 cents per shock; hay $17.90 to $20.50 per stack; milk cows, $20 to $35; 2 yearling steers, weight 750, $18 per head; 3 yearling heifers, $10.40 cents per head; 4 yearling steers, $13.50 per head; yearling hogs, $1 to $64; 1 extra mare mule cwt, $90; work mules $70 to $100; brood mares, none standard, $70 to $100.

One of the best and most reliable farmers in the Somerset neighborhood, this county, gives us the following item. He says two of his neighbors raised a crop of tobacco, and being unable to agree upon a house to which they should ship it they divided it stick about. The same hands prepared the tobacco for market, one party shipping his tobacco to the Growers' house, and the other to a rival tobacco warehouse in Louisville. He saw both lots of tobacco sell the same day, and the man who shipped to the Growers' house received $1.73 per hundred more for his tobacco than did his neighbor, besides a considerable saving in warehouse fees.

Two of Bath county's best known citizens died, the one on Friday evening and the other on Saturday morning. Both had aided in making history of their great and loved country, and within a few hours of each other these two friends and comrades gave up their earthly life and went before the Master to look into the mysteries of the untold beyond. Capt. James Ewing was born April 18th, 1811, and died at 8:30 p. m., Oct. 30th, 1891. Without a pain or struggle he peacefully passed into the great unknown. Born and raised, he also died on the old homestead settled by his father when he came from Maryland many years ago. He never married, but lived to see the entire family of brothers and sisters, eleven in all go before him. He was at one time extensively engaged in the iron business at the old Bath furnace in partnership with John C. Mason. He served as Captain of Company G, Third Kentucky Infantry, in the Mexican war, and no more popular or better loved officer ever commanded a company. He was also a member of the State Legislature in the session of 49-50. To the poor he was a veritable benefactor. No one was ever turned away from him empty-handed.

He was borne to his grave on Sunday by the following comrades who had shared with him the perils of battle, under a fierce Mexican sun: John Powers, T. M. Parsons, J. W. Langston, Dr. P. White, Col. J. S. Hurt, J. F. Trimble, Ben F. Burbridge and James Howard.

On Saturday morning Mr. W. C. Allen died at his home in Owingsville, aged 72 years. Some two weeks ago he was on a fishing expedition and returned home to take his bed from which he never rose. He served in the same company with Capt. Ewing, as his First Lieutenant. A devoted wife, son and three daughters, one the wife of Hon. C. R. Brooks, of this city, survive him. He had served his country as a legislator, and filled other positions of honor and trust, and enjoyed to the highest degree all his life long the confidence and esteem of everyone who knew him.

The ranks of those who carried our flag into Mexico with so much credit to themselves and honor to their country are thinning out fast. But few are left to follow their comrades to their last resting place.

We want every mother to know that cramp can be prevented. True cramp never appears without a warning. The first symptom is hoarseness, then the child appears to have taken cold or a cold may have accompanied the hoarseness from the start. After that a peculiar rough cough is developed, which is followed by the cramp. The best time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse; a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy would prevent the attack. Even after the rough cough has appeared, the disease may be prevented by using this remedy as directed. The only safe way is to keep a 50 cent bottle of the Remedy in the house for use whenever the symptoms of the disease appear. For sale by T. G. Julian.

SUNDAY BY THE SEA.

Beneath the pine trees on the bluff
The hamlet away to and fro,
The western wind comes whispering
A seaward message soft and low.

Beyond—the sea a tender blue,
Where golden sunbeams kiss and reach,
While lazy wavelets softly sweep
Against the thickly shelved beach.

Afar against the shining sky,
With sails uplifted clear and white,
A vessel lingers like a bird,
Southward to take its onward flight.

God's day, and his all constant sign
And soul of sweet abiding love,
Be in unchanging tender love
On earth, sunshine and sky above.

Oh, then, whose waters white
Of loving truth forever flow,
Give us the strength that all thy love
We come to recognize and know!

And when above our weary heads,
The many waters ceaseless roll,
Let us lie down in peace and sleep,
Nor fear, possess the weary soul.

A CHINAMAN'S BABY GOD

This was told in the council room of the Chong Wah Kung Sang, when the incense sticks of the Sheng-tai were smoldering and the sacred fire of Chang-heng was burning before the shrine.

Moi Hing, who married a ch'ian white woman, had become a father. He had left his Chong-yang wife in Kwangtung, and said he would never go back to the land of his emperor. He married a German girl when he came to New York, and was so great was the wrath of her parents that he had to run away to New York with her and leave his laundry in the care of the old man, Mo Hing.

He rented one room up near the top of a four-story tenement in Park street, within the throw of a stone by a child from Mott street. It was a fine place for a white man to live, and white men did not mind dark rooms, and the German girl who married Mo Hing made the best of her bargain by not complaining.

Around the yat bonbons and in the fan tan shops they called Mo Hing paan-tim-ke-yat, the Freckled One, because when the disease which the English call smallpox raged in Kwangtung district he came back to life like one whom the gods desire to reserve for a different fate. But his skin was no longer smooth. It showed the dark marks of the monster represented in the picture books as having eyes and claws of steel.

The men in the fan tan shops always liked to see the Freckled One come around, for they knew he would not go away until he left them all his money to keep until he got it back. And he never said very long.

They talked of these things because it came before the story told with excited gesture to the four in the cloudy chains. The Freckled One had, when his face was smooth as that of a Peking belle, learned how to weave curious things out of wool from a master of the art. He had learned so well that he used to carve the gods of the sea and of earth and of heaven for the shrines of the Chinese.

But the ch'ian-tan monster who left marks upon the faces of his victims when he did not kill, had stricken Mo Hing down while he was at work. He was well again he could not bear to look upon the work done with sharp knives and skillful hands.

The baby white was born to him had blue eyes and hair like the fine threads of gold with which the people of Yat-poon-kwok made wonderful embroidery. "The American God has smiled upon it," said Mo Hing when he first saw it. "A little god has been sent to me to tone for the work of the Chinese monster," and he passed one hand over his pitted face, and taking off his sandals, saluted three times before the bed and poured wine upon the floor.

He went out and bought woods that were hard, and when he brought them to the room, which was lighted only by one window, he held them up to the light to do in Kwangtung under the master. But he found new subjects for his work, and instead of reproducing on the black wood the deities of the imperial dynasty or the sea gods with eyes like fishes and scales on their breasts, he carved out the images of children, with round eyes like the blue ones his baby had, and he put wreaths around their heads.

It was a wonderful piece of work, and he kept it at by the yellow light of his tang at night and by the gray light which came through the window during the day. When it was finished he set it on the floor against the wall, and he built a platform, or platform, in front of it, and upon this he made the baby's bed. At each corner were burning Joss sticks, and as the incense went up in a straight line he believed the God of the white people were satisfied.

All of his money he spent for incense offerings for the blue eyes, and he placed gifts before the platform—little tooth-hair, made of blue satin, which should be put on the feet each day—and made garlands of broadened silk and a cap with a red button at the third degree upon it.

The cousin in the laundry in Brooklyn proved unfaithful, and said there was no money there, and the hand of the evil one was laid upon the brain of Mo Hing. Hing saw strange things, and when he walked on the street he talked to himself and cursed the men of his own race. He went into the fan tan shops and demanded the money he had lost week before. In order to get rid of him they gave him a few pieces of silver. After the first visit, when they saw him coming, the keepers would say:

"Here comes the crazy Freckled One. Give him some cash or he will bring us bad luck."

The story of the Freckled One's blue eyed baby soon became common report, but no Chinaman ever saw the face of the child, so zealously was that one who recited the story, from walk the little

WAS POPULAR IN AMERICA.

The Late German Minister Left Many Friends to Mourn His Death.

Count Ludwig Von Arco-Valley, whose sudden death at Berlin was recently reported, was secretary of the first legation sent to the United States by the German empire, and was so popular that when he came again as minister he was welcomed to New York and Washington like an old citizen retired.

He was but forty-six years old, was unmarried, handsome, dignified, unusually well informed and a connoisseur of the world in the best sense of the phrase.

He spoke the principal languages of Europe as fluently as his native German, and had studied the various countries in which he had served with much success that his conversation was an intellectual banquet. He was by birth a Bavarian, but took the Prussian view of the controversy which began some twenty-five years ago, was active in creating the new empire and got high rank at once in its service. He became a diplomat as soon as he left college, represented Bavaria at home and as soon as the mission was complete accompanied the German minister to the United States as secretary.

He served the empire next at Vienna, Madrid, Paris and London as secretary, then as chargé d'affaires at The Hague, and finally as minister to the United States. He was active in Egypt and finally, in 1888, was made minister to the United States. He was at home on a short leave of absence when an illness trouble in his stomach, from which he had long suffered, suddenly developed sufficiently to cause death.

It appears that the monarchies of bees, well governed as they seem to be, are afflicted, nevertheless, by organic criminal classes—snack thieves, highway robbers. Some of the bees go in for strong bands to prey on the weaker ones, and some are able to store and suck a provision house. Some colonies of bees never work; they live entirely by robbery and plunder.

There are also thieves who creep unperceived into strange hives to steal honey. If successful they return afterward with hordes of burglar bees, break open the hives and carry away the contents. But the most curious fact is that these bees can be artificially produced, according to Buchner, by feeding the larvae upon honey mixed with brandy—London Times.

How the Kangaroo Uses Its Tail. The common opinion that kangaroos use their strong, muscular tails as a means of propulsion in their flying leaps, which often cover from twenty to thirty feet each, is at once seen to be fallacious by anyone who joins in a kangaroo hunt. When sitting erect in attitude of observation the tail of the kangaroo is an important factor in the support of the body, and when the animal is feeding (at which times it moves about in a crouching gait) upon all four of its legs, it drags limply over the earth.

In running, however, it is curved gracefully upward and backward, and never once touches it during the kangaroo's flight, being seen to fulfill the office of a balancing pole and preserving the animal's equilibrium by shifting positions according to the nature of the ground.—Boston Journal.

The Telephone in New Brunswick. The telephone has an enviable reputation in one family at least. An old farmer who keeps a summer boarding house on the St. John river, in New Brunswick, was asked by an American how letters should be addressed to reach him. "Oh, don't put the letters," he said, "there's a telephone up to the house. Whenever you want me, just call me up and my wife will answer you." "But," said the other, "I'm American, and I may want to write you some time." "Well," answered the Canadian, "then just call me up when you want me and I guess you get us." That settled the discussion right there.—New York Tribune.

The Eye Is the Mirror of the Soul. The human eye is indeed the mirror of the soul within, and no part of the face betrays so clearly the state of the soul as the eyes. The cold glitter of greed, cunning aversion; the smacking glances of the hypocritical cynicism; the firm, straight look of the brave and strong; the restless motion of the anxious or fearful; the inquiring gaze, the hesitating, the angry, the smiling, the proud, the humble, and lastly, the love's combining adoration, feeling and longing, and who knows what also besided—Clarendon Journal.

He's Still a Watchful Parent. Years don't count for much with the vigorous and seasoned mother of the state of Maine. The story comes from Kennebecport that Captain Benjamin Thompson, aged ninety-eight, recently repaired the roof of his barn without aid. He refused to accept the assistance of his son, and, after a long struggle, "that the boy might hurt himself."

The South African diamond business seems to be prospering. One Dr. Klaber at Kimberley is said to have made $500,000 in a year.
